PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Philadelphia won from Baltimore to-day in one of the closest and most exciting games of the season.

The visitors secred their two runs in the first inning off a single by Keeler and Brouthers' home run over right field fence. Soulivan came in off singles by himself, Ham-illen, and Boyle, scoring for the Phillies in the third inning. Then it was sharp play until the seventh inning, when Taylor went to first on an error of McGraw, and he and Hamilton scored on Hamilton's single and Boyle's two-base hit. The rest of the game was a battle for blood, which kept the 6,500 people present in a wild

HOWARD IS WANTED.

Two Indictments Against the High Priest of the O. B. O. O. S.-B.-K.

Dr. Granby Staunton Howard, high priest of the Occidental Branch of the Oriental Order of the Sat-B'hai-Kooha, at Gunston Hall, Va., who initiated Mrs. Specht, the wife of the millionaire clothing merchant, into the oterie mysteries and then fied to Canada with money and lewels obtained from the fair levotee, is the subject of two indictments re-turned by the grand jury of Fairfax County,

The indictments charge him with obtaining from the Spechts $4,000 in money and dia-monds which cost $1,300. Mr. Specht has been investigating Howard's career for some time, and asserts that he has operated in New York, Boston, Burlington, N. J.; Newport, R. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, Chattaneoga, and other places under various names.

The strenuous efforts of friends and counsel to establish a reconciliation between Mrs.

Specht and her husband have come to nothing. Mrs. Specht absolutely declines any offer other than that which will give her a sparate maintenance and freedom both as to erson and religious feelings. Her counsel oroposed to her husband's lawyers that she eriven $175 or $200 per month for separate wed personal freedom, with the privilege of iso provided that the 15-year old daughter, declaide, be placed in some sulinble edu-ational institution, not a convent, where oth father and mother may visit her at will

This agreement is now under advisement by them. It will amount to virtual separa-tion and obviate any necessity for divorce

Mrs. Specht is a fine looking woman of about forty-five, with a figure slightly inclined to emboupoint, and an extremely youthful ace, which is made prominent by her fair complexion and blonde hair.

She is somewhat above the average height, dresses well, and has a peculiarly engaging In speaking of the case she expressed great cogret that there had been any necessity for egal proceedings. She simply desired per-ional liberty, and said that had there been other means of obtaining this end than the divorce court she would gladly have em-ployed them.

POLICE WINK THEIR EYES.

Many Barbers Complain that Their Rivals in Hotels Are Allowed to Keep

Open Sunday. Many of the barbers of this city have a grievance which they propose to lay before the Commissioners. They claim that their swell rivals in the hotels enjoy, through the noney blindness of the policemen on beats which include the hostelries, the privilege rhich is denied them, of performing on Sun-lay tonsorial tasks, Years ago in Mayor Emory's time a rigid law was passed absolutely prohibiting all bar-ber shops from doing business on Sunday. Up to the last few months it was earried out to the letter. The unshaven commercial trav-eler who arrived here late. Saturday night or Sunday morning was forced to pass the day with a scraggy growth of beard on his face.

The times have changed now and the drummer has no trouble in finding an open shop at aimost any of the hotels. The barbers who run the street shops say it is because the polleoman on the beat winks both eyes, and some indulge in any such luxury as the payment

Recently the Sunday business of the hotel Recently the Sunday business of the hotel shops has become so extensive that it is making sad inroads on the receipts of other shops, and has caused several of them to close up. The shops in fashiomable localities are the greatest sufferer. In all of the shops open on Sundays 25 cents is charged for a shave, and yet the shops are nearly always crowded. The situation has become such a serious one that the proprietors of the street shops have finally decided to lay the matter before the Commissioners.

the Commissioners,
John Wilson, the proprietor of the shop at
No. 704 E street northwest, is at the head of the novement looking to the enforcement of the law. Mr. Wilson says his business has been seriously affected by the Sunday shops.
"Leaving the wisdom of the law," said Mr.
Wilson to The Trans reporter, "entirely out of the question, the partiality of the police for the hotel shops cannot fail to impress itself upon everyhody. Some of the shops in the botel make as much money on Sunday morning before noon as the street shops do in the hotel make as much money on Sunday morning before noon as the street shops do in an entire week, and it is not difficult to do this with a crowd at 25 cents a shave. If one shop is allowed to do business on Sunday all should be allowed to open. We are going to appoint a committee and lay the matter before the Commissioners in a day or two, and we are confident that justice will be done us. There are hundreds of gentlemen in the city who would rather shave on Sunday morning and don't mind paying 25 cents for it. "There are many gentlemen," Wilson went

"There are many gentlemen," Wilson went on to say, "with heards that grow like thistles in Scotland, who acquire unwelcome hirsute adornment Sunday evening if shaved on Sat-urday night, whereas when shaved Sunday morning their faces are clean and presentable to last some all days. to lady-loves all day.

"This fact tends to throw a large business

"This fact tends to throw a large business in the houses of the barber in the hotels on a Sunday morning."

Another scheme of the barber in the favored hotel is to send one of his men around to the rooms of the guests. In this way he can very readily evade the law. Most of the strict barbers are inclined to throw the blame in the matter on the police. Others say that powers higher than the police have ordained that the hotels may allow their guests to be shaved on Sunday.

It sometimes pays to name a horse, as was evidenced yesterday at the Alexander Island course. For some time the Beautycolt struggled hard to win a race, but without success. of the proprietors hint vaguely at bribes and all sorts of unfair practices.

At any rate the traveler has no difficulty in finding the shop of almost any prominent botel in town doing business behind a pair of green bairs curtains. The proprietors of the street shope and some of the most prominent members of the barbers' union say it is because the hotels have a "pull" with the police. They say it is unfair to them and impossible for them, with their narrow profits.

In the first two areas, but without success. Yesterday under the name of Snap the Beauty coil scored winning brackets, and those who bet on the colt got all the way from 15 to 30 to 1 for their money. As usual Hickok let the race alone. The fourth was thought to be a good thing for Verbia but Snap made a runaway race of it. The closing event went to Classic, with Belle Blackburn second. Summaries:

AT THE THEATERS NEXT WEEK.

The coming of Robert Downing to the New National Theater on Monday evening next will be hailed by play-goers with lively satisfaction. His repertoire this season comprises "The Gladiator," "Ingomar," "Damon and Pythias," "Virginius," and "Richard, the Lion-hearted.

Lion-hearted."

No happier selection of plays could be made for Mr. Downing, whose natural gifts are in the line of herole parts. Saumet's tragic story of the old Roman gladiators is of interest from two points of view—the dramatic and the historic—and it certainly is one of the most moving dramate of the times. Besides, its atmosphere of antiquity gives peculiar fascination, and as a study of the environment of the early Christians in Rome it challenges the utmost respect.

ment of the early Christians in home it chal-lenges the utmost respect.

Mr. Dowaling's conception of the title part is worthy of the occasion, and his portrayal of it takes rank with the worthlest and noblest of his many achievements.

No one who has seen his Damon could for-get its dignity, beauty, and passionate fervor, and his Virginius also is among the firest inand his Virginius also is among the finest impersonations to be seen on the stage.

He is, moreover, the only man who plays the lion-hearted English monarch, of crusade renown, and there is not in his entire list of characters one that shows greater originality or a more independent conception. Mr. Downing's Ingomar, too, has long been re-garded as a standard performance.

This popular attraction is one of the greatest successes traveling, and wherever produced has been received with unstanted praise. It is from the pea of the weil known author, H. delivery of a brief address, which came most appropriately as an advance announcement of the anticipated good effect to be produced by the observance of the labor boliday. Mr. Canty said: "We are fast approaching the day when the united labor unions of Washington will throw their banners to the breeze and march as one for the first time in the history of the city. Therefore, we take pleasure in assuring the public that Labor Day of 1894 will winness one of the finest citizens' parades ever given in this city—a parade gotten up and managed exclusively by representatives of labor unions—a parade that is due to the permanency of labor institutions, to the proper observance of the new national holiday, and to the glory of the greater city of Washington.

Secretary Morton's Civil Service Ideas. Secretary Morton has suggested a line of examination for candidates for appointment as State statistical agents. He holds that the examinations should determine that the successful applicant is a man of fair average education, and of more than average intelligence, familiar with the resources of his own State, and with the agriculture of it and of the whole country. Besides, he should have some knowledge of the general principles of statistics. Therefore, he suggests the exam-inations might be confined to correspondence and arithmetic. The questions might touch upon the population, geography, elimate, and agricultural resources of his own State, and a general knowledge of the agricultural statis-ties of the whole country.
